

STANSFIELD VENDING'S (SVI'S) EVENT CODE OF CONDUCT

Objective: For more than 4 decades, SVI has worked very hard to provide safe and fun sporting events for all who attend, including SVI and venue staff. As such, SVI must provide an environment free from any type of harassment or any actions detrimental to the sport and respond quickly and definitively to violations of this code of conduct.

Code of Conduct: SVI event attendees are expected to always exhibit high ethical standards, assist others when possible, follow venue policies, and conduct themselves without violence, animosity, profanity, complaint, or sarcasm. Confrontational behavior of any kind (physical or verbal), including insulting, demeaning, rude, argumentative, or arrogant comments are never acceptable. Loss of emotional control, regardless of the cause, will not be tolerated. This conduct extends to digital communication including social media, texting, etc.

SVI staff may enforce cooling off periods or the "3 strikes and you're out" system to warn an attendee that their behavior has reached a level breaching the code of conduct. However, warnings are not guaranteed and depending on the severity of the behavior, SVI reserves its right to immediately expel an attendee, without warning, from the event without refund, and / or permanently ban attendees from all future SVI events. In addition, SVI will quickly and proactively involve venue security, referees, and law enforcement.

Reservation of Rights: SVI reserves its full rights to change any policy or practice, program or rule, in whole or in part, at any time, without notice.

Acknowledgment: By entering an SVI event, I implicitly acknowledge that I have read, understand, and agree with SVI's Event Code of Conduct.
